

© Copyright announcement 2011

The contents of this website are protected by the Danish Copyright Act, and may not be copied, reproduced or distributed in any form, in their entirety or partially, without the written consent of Instrumatic A/S
Downloading or copying of image and/or textual materials is only permitted by obtaining prior written consent from Instrumatic A/S.

The treatment of personal information

We realize you are interested in how your personal details are protected – and so are we. If you submit any information concerning yourself, e.g. your name, address, email address or other personal details, we reserve the right to its subsequent use unless you expressly state your objection. Thus, should you wish, you will from time to time receive information about our products, services, activities or other matters concerned with our business. However, your personal details will be put to no other use.

Business contacts

Instrumatic A/S 's website contains links to other sites, Instrumatic A/S is not responsible for the practices used on these websites with regard to personal information or their content.

Cookies, Web beacons and other techniques.

Sometimes we collect anonymous information from visits to our website in order to enhance our customer service. For example, we trace the domains people visit us from and we also measure visitors' web activities, but we safeguard the anonymity of such information. Such anonymous information is occasionally referred to as "clickstream data". Instrumatic A/S will possibly use such data to analyse trends and draw up statistics to enhance our customer service.

Instrumatic A/S only passes on personal information if this is required by law or if a writ has been issued.